LIGHTER CARLTON QUICKLY RAISED

Deckload of Stone Having Been Removed, it Came to Surface After Pumps Were Worked a Short Time Towed Down River.

After having been on the bottom of the Shetucket river for the past two weeks, the lighter Carlton, which sank on the evening of Sept. 27, was raised Saturday morning in quick time, two cylinder pumps having taken the water from it in about an hour. During the early afternoon the lighter and the second lighter, which was sent up to assist it, were towed down the river. There remains the drilling machine and the diver's raft. The Carlton sank loaded with several tons of rock which had been blasted out of the bottom of the Shetucket to make navigation possible to the town of Groton. On the night it sank it was considered that the loss was about all the lighter would hold of the next day. Attempts to pump out the water from the boat as it was held down by the heavy load were fruitless, and for about a week nothing was done. Last week another lighter was brought up here, which could get under Laurel Hill bridge, and onto that was removed the rock on the Carlton. Relieved of that, and in the opening of the large patch, it did not take the pumps long to suck out the water. There was a pump on the second lighter and one on the drilling boat.

The boat which has been used for drilling the ledge is a spile driver, and as soon as the Shetucket river work is completed by the Thames Towboat company, the spile driver will be taken to the Yantic cove, where the work of driving spiles for the city to protect the river channel from the washing away of the dump, will be commenced. This has been delayed much longer than expected.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED TO ROATH STREET.

Blaze Caused From Lamp Was Out When Companies Arrived—Damage Slight.

The first fire alarm by bell in a month came in at 6.15 o'clock Saturday evening from box 24 when the fire department was called No. 40 Roath street, to a house owned by John Dodd and occupied by Patrick Ferns and others.

The fire started from the explosion of a lamp or its falling from a shelf but the blaze had been put out when the firemen got there. Someone had broken in two windows smashing out the sash in both cases. The damage was slight. Several families live in the house.

While responding to the alarm Chief Stanton drove into the opening between the rails of the north track in Main street, where the brick has not been laid as yet, but suffered no damage. While the fire department was going to the fire, the firemen were covering that district until Chemical Company No. 1 returned, the wagon being the last one of the fire department.

West Main and North Thames street. Because of the excavation for the water main and the car standing near the excavation, the firemen had to transfer there, the space was not large enough for the chemical to pass, the sum of about $55,000 leaving about $21,000 deficit.

There was a report by Principal H. A. Tirrell and one by Treasurer Leavenworth, both of which were accepted. The officers of the corporation were elected, and the new building cost $108,000. There has been received in contribution the sum of $55,000 leaving about $21,000 deficit.

BROADWAY CRADLE ROLL.

Annual Affair in Church Parlors With About Thirty Little Ones Present.

The annual cradle roll of the Broadway Congregational church was held on Saturday afternoon in the church parlors at 43 Broadway street. There were thirty children, under the age of seven in attendance, accompanied by parents or relatives.

Rev. E. S. Worcester spoke to them and under the direction of Miss Marion Beebe several of the children recited verses from the Bible. There were refreshments of milk and animal crackers for the children, and tea and cookies for the parents, tea being poured by Mrs. Charles I. Smith and Mrs. Walter E. Lester. The little boxes were opened and contributions of over $4 were received.

In charge of the affair was Mrs. William H. Oat, assisted by Miss Katherine E. Oat, Mrs. George L. Fuller and Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs.

The Veracity of Jesus.

At the Central Baptist church on Sunday at the evening service the sermon by the pastor, Rev. P. C. Wright, upon "The Veracity of Jesus," was listened to with close attention by a large congregation. Raymond B. Eldred was heard in three violin selections during the service, playing with his characteristic musical ability. He was heard with fine effect in an obituary for the anthem, "Crossing the Bar," sung by the choir, and for the offertory he rendered Beethoven's Minuet. At the conclusion of the sermon he played Schubert's Ave Maria.
